

Our Impact Scoring Cycle

We hold a quarterly impact scoring cycle as it promotes a more agile, timely, and engaging approach to performance compared to traditional (old school) annual reviews.

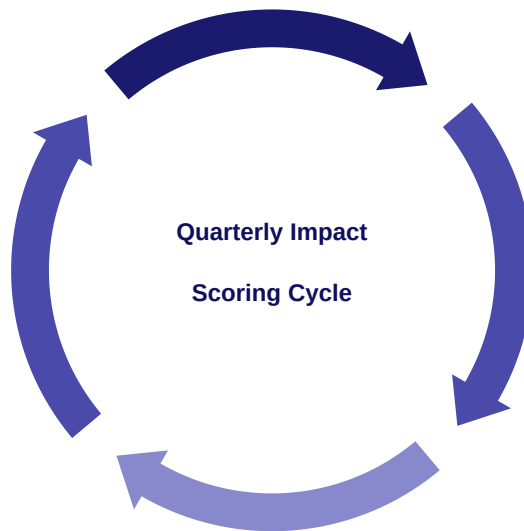

Please find our recurring steps of the Impact Scoring Cycle below:

4. Feedback conversations + final score

You will meet with your manager to discuss performance feedback and receive your final evaluation score.

3. Calibration week

To ensure fairness, scores are calibrated at a functional and Opco level.

1. Self Review + Goal Setting

The quarter is nearing an end, it's now time to reflect on your achievements with your self review, as well as set goals for the following quarter.

2. Manager review

Your manager will access your self review and write up their manager review and submit score.

Q4 and End of Year Exception

The Q4 and End of Year review cycle slightly differs from above. It will incorporate a company-wide 360 degree review process. The feedback will be shared directly with your manager, who will synthesise the reviews and share with you as part of your overall end of year review.
